

The Whale Center of New England

The Whale Center offers annual spring, summer, and fall internships to undergraduate students. Internship applicants should have the following: A background in biology, zoology, or related field; Some knowledge of research methods and design; An ability to work, live and communicate well with others; Enthusiasm and dedication to work long days (sometimes 12 hours or more) in the field or lab. College credit may be arranged by the student through their department or as an independent research program at their college or university.

For more information: <http://www.whalecenter.org/> or email at info@whalecenter.org