

The Whitney Laboratory for Marine BioScience, University of Florida

The Whitney Laboratory offers training in marine biomedical research and biotechnology to students interested in exploring a career in science. Students receive hands-on research experience in the exciting areas of cellular, molecular, and neurobiology. In cooperation with a faculty supervisor, students choose a project which fits with ongoing investigations and can be completed within a ten to twelve week training period. Interns are paid a weekly stipend and receive free housing.

For more information: <http://150.176.130.202>