Picture of the week March 31: land and ocean temperatures for the last ~220 years. The solid lines are the 5 year running means. Notice that the land temperatures tend to have greater extremes than the ocean temperatures. Also, that the temperature rise since 1960 is much less in the ocean than on land. The ocean stores much more heat than the atmosphere helping to mute the temperature signal.